September 2024

To our valued customers,

It's hard to believe we're saying "I hope you had a great summer!" once again, but alas fall is upon us and that means at Arway-Long Grove we are entering into the busiest part of our year and our facilities are buzzing with associates taking orders, making orders and shipping orders for customers nationwide. We thrive on the activity of the busy season and always look forward to the end of year push.

A continued theme in our industry is the continued elevated pricing in the cocoa market. Things have moderated a bit since earlier in the year, but prices remain at historical levels nonetheless. Cocoa is hovering around $8,000 per ton as we go to print, but with a normal range falling somewhere between $1,500 and $3,500 per ton, this remains an extraordinary moment in time.

Experts didn't expect a major correction in the short term and that has proven to be the case. Unprecedented levels of cocoa pricing are likely with us for some time as the supply chain works out some of its deficits. This, of course, has a direct impact on the pricing of chocolate, which is now trickling through our industry. The impact in 2025 may be more profound than 2024, as manufacturers come out of long-term contracts that may have covered 2024. Those suppliers are now forced to re-enter the chocolate market and are subject prices that may have not been on their books this year. We have continued to purchase well and have some favorable contracts for long-term coverage but, like many, we are not immune to the realities of cocoa pricing, nor the continued inflation on other raw materials, overheads and labor.

As was our approach with our Fall/Holiday catalog, Arway-Long Grove is taking a deliberate and measured approach to our pricing actions, but we are indeed forced to raise prices this fall. In the spring we added a new lineup of confectionery coated and blended chocolate products to our catalog, which continue to offer some respite from cocoa driven inflation should you need to pursue that path. As always, delivering the best value through higher quality and outstanding customer service is our #1 goal, and that focus never felt more important than during these inflationary times.

On behalf of Craig, and all the associates at Arway-Long Grove, we thank you for your continued partnership, and we look forward to helping you drive your business for the remainder of 2024 and into the new year!
